American Cancer Society

Filled with information and resources. One resource that I used was lodging - we stayed at a hotel for a week that was closer to the hospital at a discounted rate.

A great community that has a variety of support groups and activities for everyone. I especially like the counseling that is offered, free of charge, for children who are experiencing the trauma of cancer.

Camp Kesem

A place where kids can be kids. Camp Kesem provides week-long summer camps, free of charge, where kids and counselors come together to share their stories and have a great time. Additionally, the colleges and universities that sponsor the summer events often have events throughout the year to keep the friendships and fun going. All kids choose a camp name and my daughter chose Book Nerd 101 (anything that is sent to us via email or USPS is addressed to Book Nerd 101).

Camp Kesem: Home

This program was a huge step in our family's healing process. At home, everyone is trying to be strong for each other so things go unsaid. Camp Kesem offers children a place where they can open up about the feelings, cry together, support each other, and most importantly they have fun together.

Home Health Care Services

Oceanside Home Health Services

A wonderful company with caring individuals. We used their nursing services for daily antibiotics and their physical therapy services. Brian, our physical therapist, was amazing and very good at communicating with me via text about how the treatment went and next steps.

Hospice Care

Americare Hospice

It is very tough making this decision, but it helps if you have a team of professionals to work with you. The nurses and social worker from Americare were amazing. They communicated frequently via text (my chosen method), showed up on time, and treated Erik with love and tenderness--he looked forward to their visits, especially his bathing nurse. I could not have asked for a better team to help us through this process.
